

Where a REALTOR® can feel at home.

Why join Central Carolina REALTORS® Association?

Central Carolina REALTORS® Association works diligently to ensure protection of the needs and rights of REALTORS®. We strive to adhere to a Code of Ethics, which governs how we treat clients, prospects, and each other.

Acting as your front line of defense on the local level, we fight for key governmental issues that help make an impact in your community and your industry, while providing educational events to continue to develop REALTORS® into highly skilled real estate professionals. The State Association and the National Association follow us when it comes to any REALTOR® related issues.

Through the local level, a REALTOR® has the opportunity to receive all the benefits offered by the State and National associations.

We encourage clients and prospects to use a REALTOR® because as of 2015, eighty-seven percent of buyers purchased their home through a real estate agent or broker—a share that has steadily increased from 69 percent in 2001.

Who We Are

About Us

Columbia Real Estate Exchange (Greater Columbia Board of REALTORS®) was founded April 15, 1913, with Bruce Walker Ravenel as President and 35 initial members. It was chartered as a National Association of REALTORS® (NAR) member board, July 28, 1913, at NAR's 6th annual Convention held in Winnipeg, Manitoba Canada, where NAR introduced the Code of Ethics.

From the beginning, NAR was an International organization with a mission: "to unite the real estate men of America".

The term "realtor" was not yet in use at the time of NAR's founding in 1908, but was coined in 1916 by member Charles Chadbourn to distinguish the class of real estate professionals affiliated with the association. Today, the REALTOR® term is a federally registered collective membership mark. As such, the mark may only be used by members of the local Board and the National Association.

In 2007, the Board of Directors began to consider a name change that would better reflect the geographic diversity of the Association's members. On December 13 of that year, the board voted to adopt the operating name Central Carolina REALTORS® Association.

REALTORS® since 1913*

...but what's in it for me?

What do we do for you?

The most common question REALTORS® have is what their local association does for them. In short, we help give the REALTOR® name meaning. REALTORS® are held to a higher standard of practice and it must be realized that all real estate licensees that are members of Central Carolina REALTORS® Association benefit from the existence of REALTOR® associations. There are opposition groups who lobby against freedom of private property owners to use and develop their land in support of a growing population.

Central Carolina REALTORS® Association does a lot of work behind the scenes – on behalf of commercial and residential REALTORS® -- to make sure that REALTORS® rights are protected, they have a competitive edge over their competition, and they have tools necessary to conduct business.

A few things that REALTOR® Membership does for you:

- Stops government from creating more real estate taxes/laws and eroding even more private property rights.
- Supports professionalism and provides alternatives to litigation.
- Increases your time as the overflow of real estate information is condensed and prioritized into useable communications.
